Copper Kissed

Daylight makes a beautiful transition to night, thanks to the elegant glow of handcrafted lights

Paying homage to its roots in the Big Easy, the hanging "French Quarter Yoke" lantern lights a vine-blanketed wall at our Southern Style Now Showhouse in New Orleans. At our Napa Valley Showhouse, the portable "Governor Pool House Lantern" carries light—and copper luxury—wherever it's needed.

& MATT SARTAIN

Walking through the French Quarter of New Orleans, the soft radiance emanating from decades-old copper fixtures by Bevolo Gas & Electric Lights evokes a warm, nostalgic feel. Skilled artisans at the 73-year-old company, located in the heart of the famous district that it decorates, craft customized products that dovetail with the visions of architects and designers around the world in 47 countries. Each piece is hand-riveted and can be fitted with the inner workings of an electric or gas fixture. Only the highest quality American-mined copper is used, ensuring the company's products last a lifetime.

Each fixture bears the hallmarks of luxury: a brass tag embossed with the Bevolo name and hand-applied copper rivets. A row of "London Street" lights beams with forms that nod to a past era.
