TRADITIONAL HOME MAGAZINE'S FIRST NAPA VALLEY SHOWHOUSE
PRESENTS A HEADY BOUQUET OF DESIGN

WRITTEN BY CANDACE ORD MANROE WITH CLARA HANEBERG

Do fine wine and design make a perfect pairing? Judging by the first Traditional Home Napa Valley Showhouse at Cardinale Winery in Oakville, California, the answer is an assertive, full-bodied yes. World-renowned for its limited-production Cabernet Sauvignon, Cardinale opened the doors of its sprawling fieldstone Estate Home, last renovated in the 1990s, for designers to update. Owner Barbara Banke imposed few restrictions. In the very heart of the Valley, the house inspired with its panoramic views of lush vineyards and rolling hills.

"We couldn't have asked for a more stunning location for our first Napa showhouse," says editor-in-chief Ann Maine, "particularly when you realize that design inspiration most often comes from our natural surroundings. The talented designers who created the redesign of this house did an amazing job of finding their inspiration in the Valley and capturing the comfort and ease of the Napa lifestyle." And because no showhouse is without theatrics, it's fitting that proceeds benefit the Napa Valley Film Festival. (Don't miss the 2013 Napa Valley Showhouse—details on page 62.)
